

BA/BS Social Issue Advocacy

MAJOR: SOCIAL ISSUE ADVOCACY (BACHELOR OF ARTS/SCIENCE)

The social issue advocacy major helps students build a pathway to learn about and stand for issues important to them. Courses from a wide range of disciplines like communication, economics, history, criminal justice studies, sociology/anthropology, philosophy, and religion all come together in this program to advance causes the student cares about. Our students learn how to best serve their communities and organizations and drive social action and positive change in the world.

PATHWAYS FOR EXPLORATION

Gain the opportunity to explore your interests by completing one of the following minors as a part of your academic journey.

MINORS ACCEPTED:

- African and African American Diaspora Studies
- Anthropology
- Asian and Asian American Studies
- Child Studies
- Communication
- Criminal Justice Studies
- Disability Studies
- Economics
- Education
- Environmental Studies
- History
- International Studies
- Museum Studies
- Philosophy and Religion
- Political Communication
- Political Science and International Relations
- Psychology
- Sociology
- Women's and Gender Studies

WHAT MAKES THIS PROGRAM SPECIAL?

This program encourages students to develop leadership and interpersonal skills through getting involved with student organizations like the Environmental Campus Organization, Hispanic-American Leadership Organization, Out-in-STEM, Sexual Health Advocacy Group, or Allies Connecting Everyone in Society. If students aren't able to find a group that connects with their issue, they can also learn how to create and lead an organization of their own.

UTILIZE NUMEROUS OPPORTUNITIES SUCH AS RESEARCH, INTERNSHIPS, AND STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS

Faculty members in diverse academic departments are available to help students carve their own path.

AFTER GRADUATION:

Students that graduate from this program will find themselves prepared for roles in numerous diverse career opportunities, including community organization, education, healthcare, human services, law, non-profit organizations, law school, and government, as well as graduate studies.

Explore dimensions and dynamics of structured inequalities between social classes, economic status, and sex/gender through historical and societal lenses.

MORE INFO:

