

BA/BS Sociology/Anthropology

MAJOR: SOCIOLOGY/ANTHROPOLOGY (BACHELOR OF ARTS / SCIENCE)

ASSOCIATED MINORS: Sociology, Anthropology, Women and Gender Studies, and others;

ASSOCIATED MAJOR: Social Issue Advocacy (BA/BS)

PRE-PROFESSIONAL PROGRAMS: Pre-Law, Pre-MAE, Pre-Med

The Sociology/Anthropology program offers students an understanding of the various social, cultural, and historical systems at play in our world. Our courses cover societies of today and yesterday and consider both cultural and biological changes.

Students are encouraged to spend a semester or summer abroad as part of their major.

100% OF MAJORS
ARE ENGAGED IN RESEARCH

- Students in this program can develop and present their work at the Student Research Conference on campus and at national meetings such as the honors Program of the American Sociological Association and the American Anthropological Association.
- Students can get involved with student organizations like the Anthropology Club and Cultural and Societal Honors Society to develop a professional network.

Students can take advantage of immersive internship experiences across a wide range of interests at places like the Adair County Historical Society or Prosecuting Attorney's Office, the Lewelling Quaker Museum, the Missouri Department of Social Services, the Public Defenders Office, and more.

AFTER GRADUATION:

This program can open doors to a diverse range of career opportunities for graduates, by developing analytical and critical thinking skills paired with deeper insights into cultural and social bonds and divides.

Such careers include work in government departments or policy branches, social-service institutions, law-enforcement agencies, non-governmental organizations, education, museums, and more.

Students in the Sociology/Anthropology program will learn from professors who are professionals in their fields with a reputation for offering excellence in academic advising and mentoring.

WHY THIS PROGRAM?

This program offers unique insight into the complex and interconnected nature of the human experience, from our earliest roots as a species to the social and geopolitical structures of the modern day, and the solutions to current-era problems that can be found within.
